

Want to Play?

Look for these games in October, November, and December in Googolplex, on your credit union's web site.

Work of Art

Arthur Dealer, master of the canvas, has a dozen new works on display at The Googolheim Museum. You have a free pass to witness his wares before they go to market. But keep an eye out for his brother, Wheeler Dealer. This slippery fellow's been selling forgeries of Art's greatest works. Thwart his scheme by pointing out the errors in his work.

Nine Lives

Nine Halloween cats are crossing everyone's path but their own. Sudoku is a wildly popular Japanese puzzle, traditionally played with numbers. We've replaced figures with felines, but otherwise the rules are the same. Don't worry, we'll tell you the rules!

Second Sight

Last month, in Re-Discovering America, 19th generation explorer Skip Columbus located 25 states. Skip's back, and he's discovered more states. But he still keeps his discoveries hidden within the pages of his journals. You already know your job—get busy!

KID KRED

Group Leader

This school year, you could be a leader on a project team to create a science-fair exhibit, research a foreign country, or even produce a play. If you are a leader, get the best cooperation from the others by:

- Leading without being bossy;
- Asking others to volunteer;
- Keeping track of who's doing what;

- Looking at all sides of an issue.

Everyone counts

Project team members are as important as the team leader. Help your project team succeed by:

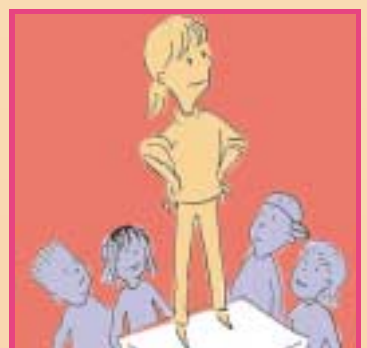

- Asking questions rather than only volunteering your ideas;
- Showing by your example that it's okay to take risks;
- Being flexible;
- Staying on track.

Ground rules

Ground rules help your team get good results. How will your group:

- Encourage everybody to give his or her thoughts?
- Make decisions?
- Make sure the team stays track?

Project teams can get a lot of work done while having a good time. As a leader, you can help your team succeed!
